This session by the President of The National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS), Mr. Bassett, addresses a series of questions for current and/or prospective parents: choices in schools, public vs. private; how independent schools work; what great schools have in common; what kids need from adults; what schools need from parents and what parents need from schools.

Mr. Bassett is president of the National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS). The mission of NAIS is to be the national voice for independent schools and the center for collective action on their behalf. NAIS advocates for independent K-12 college-prep education and provides research and trend analysis, leadership and governance guidance, and professional development opportunities for school and board leaders.

National Assoc.of Independent Schools (NAIS) President ,Mr. Patrick F. Bassett
